Nature's Nobleman.

BY MARTIN FARQUHAR TUPPER.

Away with false fashion, so calm and so chill
Where pleasure itself cannot please,
Away with cold breeding, that faithless still
Affects to be quite at its ease;
For the deepest in feeling is highest in rank,
The freest is first in the band,
And nature's own nobleman, friendly and frank,
Is a man with his heart in his hand.

Fearless in honesty, gentle yet just,
He warmly can love and can hate,
Nor will he bow down with his face in the dust
To Fashion's intolerant state;
For best in good breeding, and highest in rank,
Though lowly or poor in the land
Is nature's own nobleman, friendly and frank,
The man with his heart in his hand.

His fashion is passion, sincere and intense,
His impulses simple and true,
Yet tempered by judgment, and taught by good sense,
And cordial with me and with you;
For the finest in manners, as highest in rank,
It is you man! or you man! who stand
Nature's own nobleman, friendly and frank,
A man with his heart in his hand!

A Clown on Jesters.

Mr. Wallet, the "Queen's Jester," addressing his audience at Keith's Circus, Douglas, Isle of Man, delivered himself after this fashion:

"There never was a character on the great stage of life or the drama, so much misunderstood as the one I am endeavoring to portray. It is generally supposed that the clown or the fool of the olden time was a low, illiterate buffoon, who delighted to throw his limbs into horrible contortions, to wallow out his tongue and roll his eyes, and as Shakespeare says, 'commit such fantastic tricks before high Heaven as to make the angels weep.' But such is not the fact, The fool of the ancient day was a scholar and a gentleman, when the kings and queens of his country could neither read nor write. Besides this, the clown or fool had a higher and holier province. He was the pioneer of human intelligence and manly independence. It was he who stood up for the down trodden rights and privileges of the great human family.

"You see the fool was kept by kings, queens and courts to amuse them in their hours of leisure; and it was he who, under the garb of laughter, dared to tell those wholesome truths to the very teeth of tyrants that greater men would have lost their heads for. But now 'Othello's occupation is gone.' It is no use being a fool now-a-days—not it, indeed! Five hundred years ago—that was the time to be a fool. In those days fools were great men; but things are altered now, for great men are fools. In the olden time fools were well paid; but now like every other trade, profession or business, there is so much opposition, and so many people make fools of themselves for nothing, that the trade is not worth following. Now Shakespeare says, 'Let me play the fool! with mirth and laughter let old wrinkles come; and rather my liver heat with wine that my heart cool with mortifying groans.' Now, there is a reason for being a fool, but the generality of fools are fools because they have no reason. But I am a fool, and I give you a reason for being a fool. Consequently being a fool and having a reason, I am a reasonable fool. But there are so many kinds of fools.

"There are fools in their own right, and fools in their own wrong. There are fools for nothing, and there are fool for interest. Now, I am a fool for interest—that is, I am a fool, and I find it to my interest to be a fool. Therefore, being a fool, and having an interest, I ought to be considered an interested and an interesting fool. At the same time I must be a fool for principle, because if I [illegible] principle I could have no interest, because interest is derived from principle. And when I show I have an interest, that proves I have a principle; consequently, I am a principled fool. But there are young fools and old fools; satrical fools and drunken fools—who are the worst of all fools. Yes, if I had a voice that would echo from hill to hill and vibrate through every valley, I would cry aloud, without the fear of contradiction, that drunken fools are the worst of all fools—except teetotal fools.

"That reminds me of what I saw in Manchester one day. In one gutter I saw a pig; in the other a semblance of a man. The pig was sober, the man was drunk. The pig had a ring in his nose; the other animal had one on his finger. The pig grunted so did the man; and I said aloud, 'we are known by the company we keep,' and the pig heard me and walked away, ashamed to be seen in the company of the drunken man. Shakespeare says, 'All's well that ends well,' so I finish with the pig, because I think the tale ends well when there is a pig at the end of it."

There are two things that will make us happy in this life if we attend to them. The first is never to vex ourselves about what we cannot help; and the second never to vex ourselves about what we can help.

How His Brother Went Down.

A little old man known around the foot of Woodward avenue as "John" was yesterday hunted out in the yard where he works, by a stranger, who said he came from Oswego and had bad news to communicate. The news was nothing less than the death of John's brother by drowning, and the stranger happened to be on hand to witness. Old John stood for few minutes as if trying to realize the full extent of the calamity, and then remarked:

"Poor George, I hadn't heard from him in ten years. You say he fell off the wharf?"

"Yes; he was piling lumber, and his footing gave away and he went into the water."

"Did he fall quite easy?"

"I guess so. I don't think the fall hurt him any."

"How many times did he rise to the surface before going down to stay?"

"Twice, I think."

"Do you think he had his senses?"

"Oh, yes."

"And from where you stood you could have heard all he said?"

"Oh, yes. I was not a hundred feet away."

"Now, then," continued old John, as he braced up and got a new hold of his shovel handle, "will you answer me something in confidence?"

"I will."

"Then, sir, tell me if my poor brother hurrahed for Hancock or Garfield before he went down the last time?"

This struck the stranger for a minute, but he answered by saying that George didn't hurrah for either of the candidates as he heard.

"Maybe not—maybe not," sighed the old man—"maybe he was what they call on the fence and didn't know whether to yell with the Democrats or holler with the Republicans! Poor George! I'm a bit sorry he didn't put himself on record!"—Detroit Free Press.

Praise, like gold and diamonds, owes its value only to its scarcity. It becomes cheap as it becomes vulgar, and will no longer raise expectation or animate enterprise.

Good nature extracts sweetness from everything with which it comes in contact, as the bee extracts honey from every flower which it visits.

Mr. Vaughn of Massachusetts, neice of Mr. N. C. Webster of this village, was thrown from a carriage last Friday morning, severely injuring her right hip and arm.

George Tate, our "threshing machine man," had the misfortune to lose another horse last Thursday night while in New Hampton. This makes the third one Mr. Tate has lost by accident during the year.

The prominent arrivals at the Senter House this week are Wm. Sheafe and family of Boston, Mass.; Rev. F. S. Hyde and family of New York; H. A. Kimball and family of Concord, N. H. Thursday, Hon. J. G. Hall, M. C., of Dover, made a brief call on "mine host" Huntress during which time our National and State affairs were thoroughly discussed by the two gentlemen.

Last Sunday evening Miss Libby Benson said good-bye to a large circle of friends and early Monday morning started for Baton Rouge, La., where she is to make her home for an indefinite period being connected with a select school for ladies. She will be missed by all, both old and young, in this village, where she has always been ever ready to help, both in and out of season. In the church and Sabbath school her place will be hard to fill.

State News.

John Bedford was sentenced at Laconia, Wednesday, to seven years in State prison, for breaking and entering a store.

At Manchester, Wednesday Arthur S. Hall, about 18 years old, while removing a loaded gun from a wagon, was shot in the left side, the whole charge entering his body just below the heart.

Nathaniel White, a prominent citizen and the wealthiest man in Concord, died Saturday morning of heart disease, aged nearly 70. He was one of the late firm Cheney & Co.'s U. S. and Canada Express Company and had large business interests in various parts of the country. He was at one time the prohibition candidate for governor and has been representative in the Legislature. He was a director in several railroads and identified with many charitable institutions, and was a man of great beneficence.

Friday evening the well known Bear Camp House at West Ossipee owned by James H. Plummer together with the stable and out buildings, was entirely destroyed by fire. It is said the fire caught in the attic from some defect in the chimney. It is also said that Mr. P. had no insurance upon the property. This is the fourth time he has been burned out. The Bear Camp House was quite popular as a summer resort being very pleasantly situated on the Bear Camp river and near the Ossipee range of mountains. Mr. P. has been an invalid for many months the result of injuries said to have been received at the time of the accident caused by defective highway for which, the somewhat noted suit "Plummer vs. the town of Ossipee" now pending in the courts was bro't. Later accounts say that there was an insurance to the amount of $9000 on the buildings.

God hears the heart without the words, but He never hears the words without the heart.

Nature makes us poor when we want necessaries, but custom gives us the name of poverty to the want of superfluities.

The time for reasoning is before we have approached near enough to the forbidden fruit to look at it and admire.

Who is it that never was a scholar that doth not carry away some verses which in his youth he learned, and which even to old age serve him for homely lessons.

We pronounce that young man happy who is content with having acquired the skill which he aimed at and waits willingly when the occasion of making it appreciated shall arrive, knowing well that it will not loiter.

A big, fat colored woman came to the Galveston Chief of Police and told him that her stepson had run away and she wanted to know where he was. "It bodders me to know why he left. He had everything he needed to make his cumfable. I done all I could for him," she observed. "Has he any marks by which he may be recognized?" "Well, I don't reckon all de marks I made on him with a bed slat, while de old man was holdin' him, has faded out yit."

Mr. Willie H. Robinson had his finger caught in a gear this morning in the hair picker used by John Shaw & Co. It was badly jammed but is thought it will not have to be amputated.

Our bulletin boards which we are about to place in different parts of the village, are for the convenient use of our patrons, and others wishing to use them will please call at this office for permission.

The Commercial Advertiser comes to our notice this weeks which purports to have been printed in this place, but which was in reality printed in Manchester, N. H. It contains a number of advertisements both from this and other places.

J. R. Quimby and C. H. Colby, went out on an advertising and hunting expedition two days this week. The Meredith Weekly News Advertising Sheet and the Commercial Advertiser were thoroughly distributed. Mr. Q. brought down a number of grays, partridges and a fine fox.

Last evening Hon. Isaac Bradford of Exeter, and Col. Frank H. Pierce of Concord, spoke under the auspices of the Democrats. There were about the same number in the hall as at the Republican meeting—650 by actual count. The Mechanics' band was present and rendered some excellent music.

Hon. Geo. M. Dewey, editor of the "Banner," of Hastings, Mich., addressed the citizens of this place in the interest of the Republicans on Monday evening. Prof. Maxham rendered his songs in an excellent manner and the glee club was a valuable addition. The Mechanics' Band was present.

Messrs. A. A. Kidder, F. L. Hartshorn and T. L. Wadleigh went on a gunning excursion to Red Hill on Monday morning last. It was Tom's first experience and had it not been for that craving appetite for lunch which took most of his time, he would have beaten his companions. A fine lot of grays was the result.
